"I can go to the temple to receive ordinances for my ancestors when I am older."

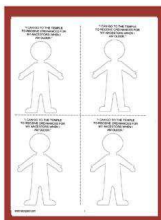

Identify doctrine: Start with an object lesson. Call one child to the front of the room. Hand them a hair comb. Tell them they need to comb their hair but they cannot bend their elbows. After they try (and fail) explain that there are certain things we cannot do for ourselves. We need to get help. Going to the temple for our ancestors is helping them do something they cannot do for themselves.

Cut up the word clues. (See attached) Scatter on the board. Ask the children to guess the first word of the weekly theme. Once someone guesses the "eye," place it on the far left-hand side. You will be putting the whole theme in order so you will need to make sure you have enough room. Continue until they have guessed the theme. Have them repeat it numerous times until it is memorized

Coloring Activity: I always find coloring activities difficult to manage in a large primary. Instead of coloring I would hand out the cards that are enclosed. Tell them to take them home and color a self-portrait on one side, and have a parent help write the names of ancestors on the back.

Activity: Have them say the theme that is on the board. (from previous game) When they say the word "I" have them act out something that they do. It can be playing basketball, playing piano, talking on the phone, etc. Then, when they say the word "ancestors" have them do an action that their ancestors might do. For example, churn butter, iron clothing, ride a horse, etc. Highlight a few children by having them come up to the front of the room to show their action.
